LETTER FROM CARRSVILLE, KY

Our Reporter There Tells Us Interesting Things About the Little City. —River is Falling.

The smallpox at Rosiclare and Fairview landing has obtained such a wide-spread distribution in those two places that the Carrsville Board of Health has forbidden the entrance of any person into this town from either place. This order is absolute. The twenty or thirty men living in Carrsville and working at the fluor spar mines across the river are now at home awaiting the raising of this quarantine.

Mining at Rosiclare is stated will be resumed in thirty days or less as the mines will be unwatered by that time. The stock of fluor spar stored at Shawneetown will probably be sufficient to fill all orders up to the resumption of actual output. Fairview has not stopped mining at all on their largest producer, the Blue Diggings shaft, and it is stated the opening at this point will yield ample tonnage for any unfilled or for the matter of that any new orders that may be received. This company is also opening a new shaft near the river and even in this flooded state of the country no trouble is experienced in keeping the water down and sinking the shaft at the same time.

The landing made by the steamer Lowery in one of the hardest winds of the season was gracefully done but in all probability Witherspoon's concrete fence at the foot of the hotel lawn was of great aid to the piolet in holding the boat, bets are being made here that this fence will not show up as very much of a fence when the water in the river recedes. The steamer it is thought was stronger than the fence, anyhow it sat upon it right smart.

"Take this away," said the guest to the waiter as the latter placed a boiled egg before him.

"And what shall I do with it sir?"

"I don't care what you do with it," replied the guest, "but I would suggest you wring it's neck."

Nick Bridges brought in a drove of thirty or forty pigs, via packet to fatten on the moist Night Riders Burn Box Car.

A freight car on the Illinois Central railroad at Cobb, Ky., in which had been loaded seven hogsheads of hand packed tobacco consigned to a buyer in Clarksburg, Tenn., was burned Thursday night by incendiaries, as believed, giving rise to some uneasiness that a revival of "night riders" is imminent. One report from Cobb is to the effect that the car and tobacco were burned by a band of men. Another report is that it was undoubtedly set afire, but by whom and just in what way is not known. In either event there is said to be no clue what ever as to who the firebugs were or their motives.

There were about 7,000 pounds of tobacco, and it is a total loss. While the burning of the tobacco bears all the ear-marks of the "night riding" of five or six years ago no serious import is attached to it.—Hopkinsville Kent.

Mr. S. M. Jenkins,
Dear Sir:—
Please stop my ad. for fear I will sell my place too many times. A man was here before the ink was dry on the 1st issue of the Record Press. It is sold. Respectfully, corn. Bridges is certainly alive to live stock matters.

Some one suggests that the opportunity of a life time is now right here, bring in a lot of yeast and with the corn already in the river a wonderful amount of whisky could be produced very cheaply.

It is understood that Mr. Frank Hamby, the widely known real estate artist, is arranging for the resumption of our weekly newspaper.

More Marion gossip is heard in Carrsville every week than could be talked of in a town twice the size of Marion in any one month. Last week we had very good stories about a druggist, a dry goods man, a fluor spar miner, a Mason and an Odd Fellow. Very likely some of them were true, they sounded natural, at least.

Somebody said that the numerous churches here were well filled last Sunday, they ought to be there is certainly enough of them.

Dr. Gardner performed several surgical operations on Albert Witherspoon last week. He handled the instruments of torture so painlessly that no one except Mr. Witherspoon really felt any unpleasant effects as each tooth was drawn. The rest of us did not mind it at all.

The river is now falling rapidly.

YEAR BOOK of Stark Bro's Nurseries & Orchards Co. MAILED TO YOU FREE

Just say on a Postal Card: "Send me a copy of Stark Year Book for 1913." When writing, also tell us how many trees, shrubs, vines, etc., you will probably plant this season.

This Year Book is more than a mere catalogue of Stark nursery products, it is a practical easy to understand text book for the guidance of the man who plants trees. Our own experience of nearly 100 years, the reports of experiment stations and the opinions of planters from all sections are condensed and reproduced for the benefit of busy people. An encyclopedia of orchard information, containing full size color illustrations of gloriously tinted fruits and many photographic reproductions in black and white; also information on many subjects in which the orchardist is interested.

Hundreds of varieties of apples, pears, peach, plum, cherry, apricot, quince, grape and all small fruits are described; weaknesses of each variety are pointed out and good points are explained. We feel that planters should know both.

Those interested in growing fruits or flowers or shrubs or shade trees will find this book of inestimable value; totally different from the average nurseryman's publications. It is a book you will keep for reference, and one on which you can depend as being absolutely accurate. Write today for your copy.

TECHNICALITY MAY BAR HIM

Unusual Question Confronts Col. Howell, Prospective Candidate.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Jan. 30.—William R. Howell, former commonwealth's attorney, may be barred by a technicality from making the race for the Democratic nomination for state senator in the Sixth district, composed of the counties of Christian and Hopkins. Senator R. M. Salmon has raised the question of Col. Howell's eligibility to enter the August primary on the ground that the latter has not been a legal resident of the district for twelve months. Col. Howell left his farm in Trigg county on last election day to make his permanent residence here. That was November 5. The election this year comes November 4, so the well-known Penyrile orator would be apparently shy just one day of the period of residence required by the constitution. He had his plans made months ago to make the race and all arrangements to remove to Hopkinsville but stayed on the farm till election day so as not to lose his vote for Woodrow Wilson in last November's election. Col. Howell has submitted the facts to a number of prominent Kentucky attorneys and will abide by their decision.

CHARACTERISTIC STATEMENT OF JUDGE GORDON

Says the Second District Is an Open Field for Aspirants

Earlington, Ky., Feb. 1.—Circuit Judge Flem Gordon says he has been misquoted in that he will make the race for Congress in case Stanley goes to the United States senate.

He says if he makes up his mind to run for Congress, he don't care whether Stanley goes to the senate or not, that he is "not looking for any one else's shoes" but wants a new pair, and if he decides to make the race, will run even if Stanley does run, and that the Second District does not belong to Stanley or any body else.

TURKS GIVE IN PEACE IS NEAR.

Adrianople is Sacrificed and Aegean Islands Left to the Powers.

Constantinople, Feb. 4.—The grand council of the Ottoman empire voted today to accept the proposals of the European powers for peace. These proposals include the ceding of Adrianople to Bulgaria and leaving the Aegean islands to the powers action. The acceptance followed closely on the heels of the fourteen days' ultimatum for acceptance or rejection of the proposals on the part of the Balkan allies, and is thought to have been made after a realization by Turkey that the powers had the pressure which could be brought to bear upon the Ottoman empire to compel their acceptance of the terms.

It is now expected that rapid steps toward final settlement will be made, and the disbanding of the allied armies should be near.

Judge Nunn Goes South.

Judge Thomas J. Nunn of the court of appeals, left last Saturday for St. Petersburg, Fla., to spend a month resting. Judge Nunn is suffering physically from overwork and his conferrers prevailed upon him to take a vacation.—Frankfort State Journal.

TOBACCO SITUATION GROWS MORE CRITICAL

Public Sentiment Inflamed by the Purchased of Non-Pooled Weed.

Henderson, Ky., Feb. 2.—The tobacco situation has become more keen during the past few hours, and since the announcement of the Regie that they would open their factory Monday morning to receive non-pooled tobacco and even more has the public become aroused over the cancellation of half a million dollars of fire insurance which included a riot and night rider clause. All the tobacco companies have had all their fire insurance re-written in New York, and the new policies do not include this clause.

Unless the Stemming District Tobacco pool of twenty-five million pound is sold at the meeting Tuesday, new developments will likely occur.

being performed by Rev. E. M. Eaton at his residence. May peace and happiness attend them on their voyage through life.

In Memory of Bro. Young.

The subject of this sketch was born in England, June 6, 1847, and was converted and joined the church in early life.

Uncle Hutch as many of us called him was a good man and loved by as many as knew him.

His health began to decline more than a year ago and continued to do so till death claimed him.

Some years ago he moved from the Tolu neighborhood to Wier, Muhlenburg, Co., where he lived until the latter part of 1912; then he and his family went to Murphersboro, Ill., where he died Jan. 9th, 1913. It was his request to be buried there.

He leaves a wife and three children by his last wife who was Alice McMican. Ed his oldest by his first wife who now lives near Lebanon, Ohio, and who is the wife of Foster Love who now resides in Murphersboro, where Bro. Young died. His wife and three children, Addie May Warthan and Jim Bigham are still with the daughter, Jot and Gabe his two sons by his second wife are in Los Angeles, California.

Bro. Young was a life-long Methodist and was loyal to his Church. Our church missed him when he moved away. We missed him as a neighbor and now that he has gone to heaven we shall miss him more and more.

May the richest benedictions of heaven ever abide with Alice and the children is our prayer.

HODGES CLOSE THEIR DOORS.

Will Receive no More Unpooled Tobacco at Present—Situation Growing Serious.

A critical situation was relieved Monday when Mr. Thomas Hodge, in behalf of the Hodge Tobacco Company, authorized the statement that no more unpooled tobacco would be received at the Green street factory.

The exclusive news in Sunday's Journal that all fire insurance in Henderson has been cancelled and insurance rewritten in New York without the riot clause, and that all arrangements had been made to throw open the doors of the lower Green street factory for the tobacco of independents, was a matter of general discussion all day Sunday.

No one questioned that the Hodges were acting clearly within their legal rights. But the question uppermost in every mind was whether the strained situation would stand this latest move on the part of the buyers without a volcanic explosion.

Great was the relief, therefore when on Monday the Hodges wisely arranged to close the Green street factory.

It was said, among other things that all local insurance carried by the Hodges has been cancelled and that insurance to the extent of nearly $350,000 had been taken out in New York, and that in this insurance there is no riot clause. In other words, the new insurance provides against trouble which might arise through the rather feverish state of the public mind just now with reference to tobacco.—Henderson Cl.

To Our Subscribers.

All of whom we hope are our friends: The subscription lists of the Crittenden Press, the Crittenden Record and the Marion News which now amount to 5000 names are so unwieldy that we find it laborious to keep them posted up right unless each subscriber attends to his own renewal. We can't always send a statement before discontinuing one's paper altho we aim to do so and to give each person fair warning so they can renew. We have now several thousand of expired subscriptions due us which we shall be compelled to put out for collection. Won't you come in and pay your mite and thus save us the embarrassment of putting your small account along with a thousand others in a batch to be collected. THE CRITTENDEN RECORD-PRESS.

Aching Kidneys Cured in Marion!

If Your Back Aches and Your Kidneys are Weak, Get the Kidney Remedy That Has Been Proved GOOD Again and Again Right Here in Marion

Marion People Tell It:

Are YOUR Kidneys Weak?

HOW TO TELL—First read the testimony and learn what Doan's Kidney Pills have done for others.

Then if your back aches, if sharp pains strike you when stooping or lifting; if you are lame in the morning, tire too easily; if you have dizzy spells and are nervous, despondent and inclined to worry over trifles; if the kidney secretions are highly colored and full of sediment; if passages are too frequent, scanty, painful or scalding, it is likely that your kidneys need quick attention.

Take a sample of the urine and let it stand for 24 hours. If a sandy, brick-dust like sediment settles to the bottom of the receptacle, there is evidence enough to suspect the kidneys.

RAILROAD STREET	I TIRED EASILY	A WONDERFUL CURE
Thos. L. Hilliard, R.R. St. Marion, Ky. says "Two years ago I was taken with an attack of typhoid fever and upon recovering found that my kidneys were badly disordered. The pains in my back were so severe that frequently I had to leave my work and lie down for several hours. There was a constant desire to pass the kidney secretions and on this account, I had to get up several times during the night. The kidney secretions were highly colored and the passages were attended with pain. I often became dizzy and saw spots floating before my eyes. A relative, advised me to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial. I procured a supply at Haynes and Taylor's drug store and they cured me in less than two months. For over two years I have had no return of the old complaint."	Mrs. Mary Alexander, Marion, Ky., says, "I was troubled by kidney complaint for three years, caused by a cold settling in my kidneys. I tired easily, was nervous and in the morning my back was very lame and ached constantly. I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and began their use. The first box acted like magic. They relieved me, and finally cured me. I can not say too much in their praise."	G. W. L. Nesbit, Marion, Ky., says, "Kidney disease had made me an invalid. I was often in bed for two weeks at a time. The kidney secretions became highly colored and my limbs were badly swollen. My sight also failed and doctors had little hope for my recovery. I could hardly hold my hands above my head, in fact, my right side was paralyzed. I had lost all hope when a relative advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I finally got a supply at Haynes and Taylor's drug store. I improved from the first and I felt confident I had at last found something that would cure me. One by one the symptoms of the trouble left and in three months I was a well man, attending to my business in the usual way. That Doan's Kidney Pills are the greatest remedy in the world for kidney disease, is a fact of which I am firmly convinced."
WAS VERY NERVOUS	OTHER MEDICINE FAILED	A PERMANENT CURE
William Redd, farmer, Marion, Ky., says, "I had a severe pain in the small of my back and it ached and felt lame in the morning on getting up. I tired very easily and was nervous at all times. The kidney secretions were too frequent in passage and contained sediment. Hearing Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended, I began their use. I was helped almost at once. There has been no return of the trouble, but I keep Doan's Kidney Pills on hand for emergency, if I should happen to catch cold or my kidneys need attention."	Mrs. Emma Weldon, Marion, Ky., says, "Kidney trouble bothered me for five years and my health became run down. My back was lame and pained me most of the time and I suffered from headaches and dizzy spells. None of the remedies I took gave me permanent benefit. I finally began using Doan's Kidney Pills as a last resort, procuring them at the Haynes and Taylor's drug store. In less than a month they removed every symptom of my trouble. I heartily recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to other kidney sufferers."	A. W. Thomas, Marion, Ky., says, "While working as a miner over five years ago, I met with an accident which affected my kidneys. I had medical aid at the time, but was not helped very much. I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and took them. The benefit I had was wonderful. The terrible pain in my back left and my kidneys became normal. I was soon able to get about and do work in a regular manner. The cure has been permanent. I heartily recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

WOULD GIVE HUSBAND

To the Girl for Whom He Risked Life, Says Wife.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 29.—Mrs. Mamie Seibert Stewart, aged twenty, wife of William Stewart, will give up her husband to another woman—the woman Stewart loves and for whom he gave his blood Sunday night in the hope of saving his life.

Myrtle Balvering, aged 18, the other woman, is dying at the West Penn Hospital. She must have more blood at once. Stewart wishes to submit to another transfusion operation. Doctors say this would be fatal to him. They refused the offer of the girl's brother because of his kinship.

Mrs. Stewart, who has not lived with her husband for nearly a year, said she would willingly surrender Stewart to the girl he loves. She is praying, she says, that Miss Balvering will recover so that Stewart and she may be happy.

"If the girl recovers and will wants a divorce I shan't oppose the action," said the young wife.

Mr. S. M. Jenkins, Kind Editor;—

I see that it is time for me to renew my subscription to the dear old Record Press. Enclosed you will find a check for $1.00 for which continue the paper to my address. There is not a subscriber to your paper who appreciates it more than I. The memory of our old home has not grown dim enough to allow us to forget to appreciate the home paper. The five years that have passed have not deadened my love for my old Kentucky home.

We are having a good deal of snow this winter but no rain—we never have rain through the winter, but plenty of wind and sand.

We made plenty of feed of all kinds last year. I got my corn gathered but like about two days work being done hauling in my maize. I have three tons of broom corn but it is not worth but from $15 to $40 per ton. So I will hold mine till spring. It neither eats nor drinks. We are having good health this winter.

As I am so near through with my work and it is cool and cloudy I have been killing rabbits for the last three days. I got enough of the old fellows to feed the cats and chickens every day.

My wife has a hundred hens and a bate of rabbit along with their food makes them healthy and we sure do get eggs. I know it would seem strange for some of the boys and girls who have never been away from the hills of Kentucky to come west and see the plains, not a tree nor any thing to be seen as far as you can look with your natural eyes. If a horse gets scared and wants to run, I'm sure he won't run against a tree nor stump.

I have 16 head of cattle and 7 head of horses, all to look after myself, for my boys are all gone. Jeffie and wife are in Ft. Worth Tex., and Corley is in St. Louis. We get a letter from them every two week. Closing, I wish you a happy New Year.

MISSISSIPPI LEVEE

Breaks Near Vicksburg and 1,000 Square Miles May Be Flooded.

Vicksburg, Miss., Jan. 29.—A torrent 200 feet wide tonight is rushing through a crevasse in the Beulah levee, north of here, on the east bank of the Mississippi and the water is rapidly inundating the lowlands, destroying crops and driving hundreds of families to the high lands.

Fifteen hundred men are at work repairing the break, but efforts do not avail to prevent a widening. Army engineers here estimate that before the flood recedes 1,000 square miles will be inundated. No loss of life is reported late tonight.

Decision of Council to Run on Moonlight nights Costly One.

The order made by the general council in which the board of public works was instructed to order the superintendent of the municipal lighting plant to keep the city lights burning every night of the year, will mean an expenditure of practically $1,000. At present the plant closes down on moonlight nights as has been the custom for years. Many times the lights are out when the moon hides behind dark clouds.

The passage of a motion containing the order was brought about by numerous complaints which members of the general council had received from drivers of vehicles. Many accidents which could have been of a disastrous nature have resulted from the absence of the lighted cars.

The motion was introduced in the upper board of the council by Alderman C. L. Van Meter and received unanimous passage.

Stories of the Town

Things Serious and Frivolous Told About on the Streets of the County Hub.

CHASED BY THE SHERIFF

(Reported by R. C. Haynes.)

Those of our readers who have kept up with Zebulum's story, as told by himself and given in this department from week to week, will remember that we left the prospective bridegroom, together with the prospective bride and the prospective officiating minister, skedaddling down the road, going at full tilt, three abreast, making long and rapid strides in the direction of the little town of Fords Ferry, on the Ohio. It will be remembered, too, that a short distance behind them rushed the sheriff, the town marshal, the deputy, Solomon Wiggleford and Highfield Jones, with strides no less long or rapid, loud yells of anticipated victory emanating from their five dust-covered mouths—all da hing madly on, determined to overtake the scoundrel who struck Bobby Broadway and put his light out, the majesty of the law and the dignity of the Commonwealth being thus trampled under the said scoundrel's feet. But we will again let Zebulum continue his own story, after his own fashion.

"Brother Marlow," continued Zebulum, "was a Cumberland Presbyterian minister and was, in those days, one of the best known preachers in this part of the country. He was a great revivalist and was loved, not only by the members of his own church, but by others as well. Although I was, as I have said, a member of the old school branch of the church—having perhaps, a firmer faith in the doctrine of the foreordination of whatever events come to pass, and a little clearer insight as to the destiny of certain non-elect individuals when they are ushered, like the unfortunate Bobby Broadway, out of this rough-and-tumble world—Squire Brownlow and his family, including Nell, were Cumberlands. It was this fact, mainly, that caused Brother Marlow to have the good fortune to be chosen to perform the marriage ceremony between Nell and me—provided, of course, he could get a favorable opportunity for doing so.

"As the three of us plunged on down the road toward Fords Ferry, with the sheriff and his followers a short distance behind us, also plunging and going in the identical direction, yelling like raging hienas, the prospects looked dark from the view-point of either the minister, the would-be bridegroom or the would-be bride.

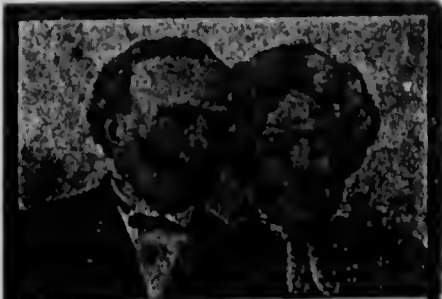

"However, as I glanced back and saw that we were almost holding our own with our fleet-footed and determined pursuers. I took fresh courage. Taking a little firmer grip on Nell's hand and suggesting to Brother Marlow that he do the same, we plunged on with increased speed. The road was now down-grade and we went down the hill lickety split, leaving great clouds of dust behind us, Brother Marlow's long coat-tails spread out like sails behind him, his only unoccupied hand clutching the thin air, but still holding on to his stove-pipe hat; beautiful white skirts of her wedding dress rebelliously floundering and flapping in all directions, her cheeks flushed with excitement, her little mouth open, her pompadour in disorder, her wedding hat dislodged from its rightful position and its long ribbons flapping in the breeze behind her—on we went, lickety split.

"As we were thus going down the steepest part of the hill, I saw up the road an old man riding a mule coming to meet us. The animal was trotting gently along, his large, benevolent-looking ears keeping time to the music of his feet as they peppered against the hard roadway. No sooner, however, had the animal seen us than he lit out through the woods like a blue streak, his heels in the air, and now and then glancing back to take a new look at us, every look seeming to increase his terror and add to his determination to widen the distance between us—off he dashed, jumping across gullies, over fallen logs and through the bushes, the old man holding desperately on to his back, shouting whoa, Bellzie! and scattering the autumn leaves as they went.

"Of course we had no time to look after the old man's welfare. We had more pressing troubles of our own to look after; for, as I looked back I saw the sheriff and his party, still yelling like bloody Indians and rushing like wildfire toward us.

"We were now in what I might call the suburbs of the little city of Fords Ferry. The town is, as many of you know, situated a little back from the river on an elevation considerably above high-water mark, I could look down the road and see the peaceful cottages dotting the landscape, the silent, almost deserted streets, and a little beyond the limpid waters of the Ohio.

"By this time I could see that Nell—bless her brave little heart—was getting very tired from her long run and, fearful lest the exertion might be too much for her, I resolved to carry her the rest of the way. It was an embarrassing thing for me to undertake, for I was young and boyish and bashful and I didn't know just how to take hold; but take hold I must, I reflected, and take hold I did.

"Bidding Brother Marlow to take the lead and to make for the river as Nell, with her little feet bounding from one elevation to another, the if his grandfather was drowning, I picked Nell up in my arms and made off after Brother Marlow, keeping as close on to his swift-moving heels as I could.

"Brother Marlow was a tall, slender man, with long, slim lower limbs and wore, on this occasion, a pair of black broadcloth trousers, made tight-legged, after the prevailing fashion. His feet were large, filling a pair of about number nine shoes.

"He lost no time in taking the lead, as I suggested, plunging on down the hill, his arms swinging like two big pendulums, his long legs flying through the air, his number nine shoes pounding the ground and sending up great clouds of dust and leaving no loose stones in his pathway. On he plunged in front of me, palling desperately for the river, and on I plunged after him, pulling no less desperately and for the same body of water. Every time the minister's hindmost foot left mother earth to take its position again in front, my foremost foot pounced down in the newly-veated track. On and on he plunged, jumping over culverts, gullies and washouts—what if, by some mishap, I reflected, he should stumble and fall, the three of us making a promiscuous wreck on the roadway and bringing the chase to an untimely end? The bare thought of such a calamity made the hair rise on my head.

"On, however, plunged the sure-footed Brother Marlow, with bound after bound, and on I plunged after him and on plunged our pursuers right behind us. It was a rough ride for Nell, poor thing, but she held manfully on, her little heart flip-flapping against my breast, her soft, white arms entwined unconsciously about my neck and her two hands gripping the back of Benny's best suit.

"On we swept through the town like a whirlwind, pell-mell, lickety-split, the people rushing to their doors and windows to get an amazed glimpse at us as we passed, the merchants rushing to the sidewalk with sugar scoops in their hands and customers carrying bars of soap, all staring at us as if we had been the forerunners of a circus parade.

"We were now within a short distance of the river, with its broad waters glistening with the golden rays of the setting sun. I felt then that I would rather sink forever beneath its calm, silent waters than to be captured by those relentless sleuthhounds of the law and dragged back to the county seat.

"On, Brother Marlow, on! I shouted, determined to make a last desperate effort to escape, as I could hear the rapid foot-falls of our pursuers and knew they were gaining on us at every bound.

Encouraged by my words, once more the faithful minister, with renewed determination and lengthened strides, plunged down the steep declivity leading to the river, his feet scattering the cobblestones right and left, his head thrown back, his mouth open, and his hair tousled and covered with dust for want of a covering, his stove-pipe hat, though of the latest ministerial pattern, being of no earthly use on such occasions as this.

"Gripping my precious burden more tightly in my arms and clenching my teeth with grim determination, I plunged on after the swift going minister, the shores of the big stream seeming to widen as I approached.

"When at last I reached the bank and placed Nell's little feet once more terra firma, Brother Marlow had unfastened the moorings of the only skiff on the landing and was sitting cross-legged in the stern of the boat, his stove-pipe hat on his head, puffing one great puff after another and mopping the perspiration from his benevolent face.

"Placing Nell in the bow of the skiff, I gave the boat a shove, sending it adrift, and leaping in; then taking an oar I gave the bank a punch which sent the boat out into the deep, smooth waters of the river. As I made the leap from the bank to the receding boat, my pursuers were right at my heels and the sheriff, with a yell which resounded from shore to shore and reverberated against the huge cliff of Cave-in-Rock, made a desperate leap for the back of my neck, his fingers brushing the collar of Benny's best suit! By grab, it was a narrow escape! could the sheriff have lessened the distance between us by half an inch he would have had me in his savage grip. He could not do it, however, but, coming to the edge of the bank, he tried to stop, wavered an instant, floundered, lost his balance, then on and over and down he went, heels over head, wearing Nibb's light-gray suit, ker-chug into the river!

"He struck the water headforemost and disappeared—swallowed up by the on-flowing waters of the big Ohio! In a moment, however the smooth service of the water seemed to be disturbed, and I saw the sheriff of Crittenden county bob up, like an immense cork his head toward the shore, his mouth spouting forth a stream of river water and his arms and legs revolving like immense sternwheel toward the landing. He soon reached the shore, gave himself a shake that sent the water flying from Nibb's light-gray suit, scampered up the bank and joined the rest of the party, who were lined up on the bank.

FOR ASSESSOR

We are authorized to announce JOHN L. WOOD, of Shady Grove, as a candidate for Assessor, subject to the action of the Democratic primary.

We are authorized to announce PHIL S. TRAVIS, as a candidate for Assessor, of Crittenden county, subject to action of the Republican primary, first Saturday in August, 1913.

FOR JAILER

I am a candidate for jailer of Crittenden county subject to the action of the Democratic primary, 1st Saturday in August, and desire the vote and influence of every voter.

CHARLES W. LOVE.

I am a candidate for Jailer of Crittenden County subject to the action of the Democratic primary, 1st Saturday in August, and desire the vote and influence of every man who wants a good Jailer.

JOHN CHRISTIAN SPEES.

I am a candidate for Jailer of Crittenden County subject to the action of the Democratic primary, 1st Saturday in August, and desire the vote and influence of every man who wants a good Jailer.

WILLIAM ENOSH BELT.

LOOKOUT.

Hurrah! It's coming! What I told old Smith! Spees is out for jailer. Well now you bet we're going to boost him to the last ounce of our muscles.

There isn't a man in this country but what would vote for "Old Reliable," soul and body, why? There are one or two things, when looked at by the farmer, make reasons:—First, we, up in this country, belong to the Union and sell our tobacco at Marion. Second, when we get to Marion about midnight half-froze to an icicle and hungry as pack of starved wolves, who's on duty to receive us with "come right in, men, this way to the fire?" Well now you bet it's a fire—not one of these half chunked, little bulldog stoves, but a great big heater hot from bottom to top.

What's that feeling that comes creeping up when you're getting warmed up and smell that scent of ham and eggs mixed along with that smell from a well-filled coffee-pot "be there in a minute," that's what Old Reliable says, and first thing we know, we're sitting down to a smoking hot breakfast or whatever you want to call it. Then wouldn't you vote for him, huh! Bill says we'd be worse than blacksnakes without teeth.

Who's that fellow that treats you like you were white when you're dead broke and feel like a good meal would make you feel like hitting the road again? Well, we know him up here by the name of Old Reliable.

You just go a head old boy, see who puts the cross on the rooster jailer. We'll hit that rooster so hard, he'll crow forty times a minute.

Guess Shorty has about served his hand at cooking midnight meals for tobacco men. We're going to put him where he can be a friend to all of us. We've had two of the elections, one for President and the other for Postmaster and now we've got to put Old Reliable through for jailer. Got some little time yet but when we discuss it and settle on it good and hard I'll be darned if the whole Republican party from front to rear could turn us. Don't know about the rest but we from the east are down on every thing that looks like a Republican. Now next week let's hear from the west on this here question. Advertisement from a Subscriber.

Electricity on the Farm.

A farmer in Vermont says Outing, "reports that his wife cooks, washes, and irons, besides running a vacuum cleaner, by electricity, while he separates the milk and milks his cows by electric power. His home farm comprises two hundred and sixty-three acres, and he adds that, having electricity to run his machinery, he hires very little help except in haying and harvesting."

Does this strike you as an impossible thing for most farms? The writer of the article quoted from goes on to show how it may readily be brought about;

"Wherever there is a stream that tumbles down hill there is power, and that power can be carried over into the barns and houses. Many a farmer has a brook of this sort which is now giving only water for his cattle, or possibly a little poetry to his daily life. If it can be made to develop two or more horse power, it is an easy matter to install a dynamo that will carry power for lighting his house and operating his machinery.

"You can scarcely estimate the advantage of some such power in removing every sentiment of drudgery from daily life. It will run the feed mills, the pumps, the threshing machines, the corn shellers and indoors will wash the dishes and the clothes as well as do floor scrubbing. It fits nicely to the work done in the shop, besides doing some of the shop work.

"I note that two neighbors in central New York have secured power enough from a brook that for ages has only tumbled down a glen and run through a meadow, to light all their buildings and do a large share of the home work—and after harnessing it they have sold power to their neighbors. From western New York comes a story that shows how half a dozen or more country home makers can co-operate to the same end. It goes a long way toward solving the terrible help problem, not only in the field, but in the kitchen. The housewife can get more work out of a brook than out of a dozen Bridgets."—Classmate.

School Notes.

Mr S. M. Jenkins.

Dear Sir:—

I am submitting to you a report of the January Examination. I should like to compare it with the January examination of last year. Last year we had ten and all made a passing grade. This year we had 41, an increase of 310 per cent. There are two or three hundred in the county who should have taken the examination, but we will look and hope for the others to come and take the May examination.

While the work of all showed the training to be good and in the right way, still there were seven who did not quite reach the standard. The standard in this test is just a little higher than that required for a second class certificate and I should like to say to those who failed, not to become discouraged but continue the work with more zeal and earnestness than ever before.

I should like to say to the teachers who prepared those pupils that they have been faithful and true to their work and they are counted among the progressive teachers of the county.

Following is a list of those pupils who passed successfully, their home districts, their grades and their teachers.

FAIR THAT MADE A TOWN WAKE UP

Bowling Green's School Gathering Beat the Circus.

IT ROUSED CIVIC PRIDE.

And Made Citizens Realize That Kentucky Was Forging Forward to Take Her Place With Other States of the Union.

A circus can bring a crowd into a town that will tax the livery stables and side streets, but a school fair and parade can do the same. On Oct. 23 Bowling Green was crowded, crowded as if a show was in town, but there was a difference. It was a crowd of eager, expectant people, with eyes looking far beyond the mere parade; it was a crowd that marks the awakening of a state that had dozed comfortably for years; it was a crowd that unconsciously was making history. It was not a yelling, surging crowd, but one that stood quietly as the parade passed and made remarks that were pregnant with thought. One grizzled old farmer looked far down the line of sturdy marching children, stilled and remarked to his neighbor: "This is the biggest day Bowling Green ever had. It's bigger than speeches, elections and everything else."

Just think of practically every school child in the county in line, parading the principal streets of the town. Think of the school pride that came to them while preparing their unique costumes and banners to compete for the prizes offered. There were whole schools in blue and white, black and scarlet, brown and red and pure white. One group had each and every boy, big and little, in a brand new pair of blue overalls. Even the subdistrict trustee had caught the contagion of enthusiasm and marched in his new blue overalls.

Back to the top of the hill on which the buildings of the Western Normal rest went the line of march. Behind them went the throng of parents and friends to have a look at the display of the Boys' Corn club of Warren county and the exhibits of the schools. In one of the large rooms at the school booths were arranged that each district school might have a distinct space for its handwork. A walk among these booths showed benten biscuits, cakes, bread, preserves, jellies, garden vegetables, doll furniture, sewing of all kinds, drawings, paintings, collections of leaves and various woods. The corn show was splendid, but it must be taken up as a separate story. In fact, the impression made on your reporter during the whole day he spent at Bowling Green was that it was all too big, too fine, too impressive to handle properly. It is easy to feel the throbb of enthusiasm in a crowd that is surcharged with it, but it is a far different matter to put it into cold print.

Such events make us know Kentucky has roused herself from her nap and is stretching herself and rubbing her eyes. It is only necessary as she rubs the drowsiness from her eyes to make her see the problems that confront her children clearly, then to make her move forward steadily toward the place that should be hers among her sister states of the Union.

Loyd's Brain Leaks.

Uncle Billy Loyd says it is perfectly natural for a man to chase a hat, but it is not a safe thing to do when there's a pretty girl under it and your wife catches you in the act.

George Reid says there is nothing so aggravating in a home as a crying baby unless it happens to be twins.

Last winter Mrs. Ellen Loyd was in Cairo and she wanted to go down to the city shopping. She got on a street car and took her seat. She opened her satchel and took out her purse, closed her satchel and opened the purse, took out a dime and closed the purse, opened the satchel and put in the purse. Then she gave the dime to the conductor and took a nickel in exchange. Then she opened the satchel and took out the purse, closed the satchel, and opened the purse, put in the nickel and closed the purse, opened the satchel and put in the purse closed the satchel and locked both ends. Then she felt to see if her back hair was all right and it was all right. That was the woman in her.

Mrs. Irene Smitte says a gossip woman slanders herself more than any one else.

Billy Cox says if at first you don't succeed find out the reason and try again.

Nue Dollar says he killed his wife's old rooster because the cansaned fool persisted in waking him up too early in the morning.

Sam Watson scolded his wife like sixty for throwing a few cold potatoes in the slop and left his haying machine standing in the meadow the whole blessed winter. (Selah.)

Uncle Billy Loyd has been grunting around this week. The horse doctor (Taylor) says he has been eating too much hog meat.

Mrs. Dave Patten got a lot of colored balls off the Christmas tree. She did not know what to do with them so she made nest eggs of them. She says her hens have laid nothing but easter eggs ever since.

Ed Baker says birds and Republicans were very scarce all through the hunting season.

Uncle George Stallions says its awful queer to him that his wife's rheumatism is always better about Christmas times.

Dan Boisture says you can't tell a good hound by the length of his tail or the tone of his gulp.

Judge John Blue was trying a negro about abusing his wife. She claimed he got drunk and tried to beat her and she hit him. The Judge turned to their little girl and asked, "Girl was your father under the influence of whiskey when your mother hit him?" "No sah! He was under the kitchen table," she quickly replied.

Joe Stewart had a lady caller from the country the other day. Are you the man that makes pictures?" she asked. Mr. Stewart admitted he was. "Can you make pictures of little children?" "Certainly." "And what do you charge for them?" was the next question. "Three dollars a dozed" "Oh, sucks! I'll have to wait another year; for I've only got eleven" said the woman in a disappointed tone.

They talk about a woman's sphere as as though it had a limit;

There's not a place in earth or heaven, There's not a task to mankind given

There's not a blessing or a woe, There's not a whispered yes or no, There's not a life or death or birth, That has a feather's weight of worth without a woman in it.

On motion at a special term of Fiscal court of Jan. 7, 1913, it was ordered that the roads of Crittenden county be worked by hands to be warned in by the County Road Engineer, or his assistants, and all able bodied male citizens of the county over the age of 18 years and under the age of 50 years, except licensed ministers of the gospel and citizens of incorporated towns and cities, are required to provide themselves with necessary tools and implements, and to work on public roads of the county, not exceeding two days in a week and six days in each year, provided, however that any road hand may pay to the county engineer, the sum of three dollars. ($3.00) on or before the 1st day of June, of any year, and upon payment of said sum, he will thereby be released from work upon the road during the said year. The County Road Engineer shall immediately pay over said sum so paid to him, to the county treasurer, who shall place same to the credit of road fund, and same shall be applied and used in the employment of graders, plows, and teams and hands to work upon the roads of the county when needed. And said treasurer shall keep a separate account of such funds from that paid to him by the sheriff.

In employing hands to work upon said roads the County Engineer shall pay the prevailing wages in the neighborhood where said work is done, not however, to exceed $1.50 nor less than $1.00 per day, for each day of eight hours. In view of this fact I am now prepared to give receipts to all who want to pay.

OLD AGE.

Old age as it comes in the orderly process of nature is a beautiful and majestic thing. It stands for experience, knowledge, wisdom, counsel. That is old age as it should be, but old age as it often is means poor digestion, torpid bowels, a sluggish liver a general feeling of ill health, despondency and misery. This in almost every instance is wholly unnecessary. One of Chamberlain's Tablets taken immediately after supper will improve the digestion, tone up the liver and regulate the bowels. That feeling of despondency will give way to one of hope and good cheer. For sale by all dealers.

The Cheerful Life

It is the right of everyone to live and enjoy the cheerful life. We owe it to ourselves and those who live with us to live the cheerful life. We cannot do so if ill health takes hold of us.

The wife, mother and daughter suffering from hot flashes, nervousness, headache, backache, dragging-down feeling, or any other weakness due to disorders or irregularities of the delicate female organs—is not only a burden to herself, but to her loved ones.

There is a remedy. Forty years experience has proven unmistakably that

Cynic Who Says A Woman Is Like a Cat

In the February Woman's Home Companion appears a fiction story in which the "villain in the play"—a cynical married woman in early middle age—gives a bitter piece of advice to a young woman who is about to marry a poor man whom she really loves. In this story the cynical married woman gets the "worst of it." Following is her advice to the young girl:—

"When you marry it is just as well to remember that the moon doesn't shine in the daytime. You can live on bread and cheese and kisses of course; but if you do you'll find yourself haunting the restaurant windows before long, and sniffing the smoke from your neighbor's kitchens. A woman is a good deal like a cat, my dear little Jill, she can love almost any one who feeds her and warms her and gives her a cushion to lie on. Why not love the man who can give you the most, then,—it's just as easy,—all things else being equal" and shewed me that great city, the holy Jerusalem.

She was a true Christian always living close to the cross, an humble child of God. She was a devoted wife, a fond and loving mother. She leaves a husband, one brother, J. H. McMican of Kansas City, Mo., and four children, J. W. Arflack, Mrs. M. E. Bryant, James F. Arflack and E. O. Arflack of this county besides these she leaves fourteen grandchildren. All that medical skill, kind friends and loving hearts could do was done.

Oh, how we shall miss her love and kindness. But God's will be done and not ours. "Our home is dark but heaven is brighter." "Let us live as she lived, With faith the long years through,

Ever with eyes on Him Seeking God's will to do. Somewhere beyond the stars, With eager, out-stretched hands, She'll watch and wait, to welcome

Us at Heaven's gate, and all changed In glorious brightness, we shall stand,

Before the Father's throne, hand in hand,"

Written by her pastor.

Boys, you need have no more fear of that troublesome rock, for Al Stokes, the great rabbit hunter, left our little town last week for his home in Cincinnati, Ohio, and took it with him. He stepped upon the rock some time ago and could not stay away from Weston. One man from here went as far as Cave-in-Rock with him and said the last he saw of that troublesome rock, it was on the Elk going down the river. Farewell, Datchie, you leave a host of friends behind you in and around old Weston, but we hope you will take that rock so far away that it will never bother us any more.

If the editor will allow me a little space in his valuable paper, I would like to offer to the tobacco growers the following plan of controlling the price on the 1913 crop of tobacco:—First, that we pool our tobacco in any organization or association that we please, just exactly as we have been doing, as it is impossible to get all to pool in any one organization;

Second, that we elect a committee to fix a price on the tobacco, allowing every pool one committee-man to each and every 1,000 acres of tobacco, provided that every pool shall be allowed at least one member of the committee regardless of size;

Third, that after the price is fixed, each pool manage its affairs, such as selling and grading, etc;

Fourth, that each pool be allowed to sell at any time, if they can get the price, fixed by the committee, provided, that no pool shall deliver a pound until it is all sold;

Fifth, that we invite those who have been selling independently, to either pledge their tobacco with the existing pools, or form a pool among themselves, and help us get a fair price for all of the tobacco.

Letter From Tenemo, Tenn.

Tenemo, Tenn., Jan. 24, 1913.

Dear readers of the Record-Press I thought I would put a piece in your paper about bottom news at Tenemo, Tenn. They are flooded by the Mississippi river, which is twelve miles wide. S. H. Roberts and S. R. Roberts left Tenemo Jan. 22nd. We went four miles in water until we got in one mile of Miston and there was water almost from Miston to Dyersburg.

We left Miston at 4 o'clock p. m., and got to Dyersburg at 6 o'clock p. m., and got to Princeton, Ky., at 8 a. m., and arrived at Marion at 8 a. m.

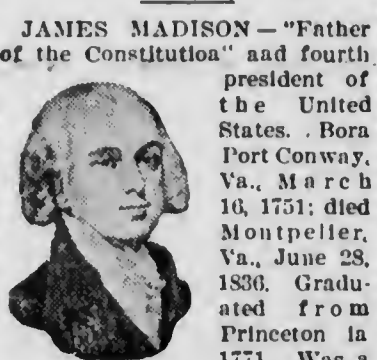

Redd Bradshaw and Clady Cox are on the sick list. Mr. Basal moved near Tenemo and Mr. Garden is talking about moving.

The cotton and corn crops are in danger of the water.

M. Roberts is going to Sikeston, Mo., to live. John Herod is talking of going to Missouri.

S. H. Roberts.

THE HALL OF FAME.

JAMES MADISON—"Father of the Constitution" and fourth president of the United States. Born Port Conway, Va., March 16, 1751; died Montpelier, Va., June 28, 1836. Graduated from Princeton in 1771. Was a delegate to the Continental congress and to the constitutional convention, in which he took a most conspicuous part. Kept a journal of the debates in the body and joined with Hamilton and Jay in publishing the Federalist. Later broke with the Hamilton faction and became associated with Jefferson. Served as secretary of state during Jefferson's two terms and succeeded him as president, 1809-17. It was during Madison's administration that the war of 1812 occurred. Socially the Madison regime was brilliant.

THE END OF TUBERCULOSIS

Value of Education.

By DR. EDWARD L. TRUDEAU.

The first and greatest need in the prevention of tuberculosis is education—education of the people and through them education of the state. It is evident that if every man and woman in the United States were familiar with the main facts relating to the manner in which tuberculosis is communicated and the simple measures necessary for their protection not only might we reasonably expect as direct result of this knowledge a great diminution in the death rate of the disease, but the people would soon demand and easily obtain effective legislation for its prevention and control. When a state has once become well educated and not before will the other requisites necessary to the control of the disease be forthcoming.
